The Times' Daily Short Story.

The Shanghaied Cowboys ?

Jacob Russ, alias Arizona Jake, had been in many disturbances of the peace and had arrested many desperadoes. His weapons were, first, his coolness; second, his quick and certain alm with his revolver. A banker once, desiring to send some gold dust to San Francisco, put it in charge of Jake and four others of the same kind, knowing that it would be safely transported. The dust was duly turned in, and the guard determined to do the This was before San Francisco was visited by the great earthquake and fire, and there was a deal to be seen there. What a cowboy would be interested in was not palatial residences or libraries or scientific institutions. The party was rather inclined to sample the product of corn and rye distilled into whisky and after a three days' bout sank to sleep in a gin mill near the bay. The ship Sarah Rose was sailing out of San Francisco bay, the rising sun shining on her stern. The captain, a short, thickset, ugly looking man, walked the quarter deck, getting her out of the harbor as best be could with three or four miserable looking men who knew very little about seamen's work. The truth is that Captain Barker was such a fiendish tyrant that the only way he could get a crew was to take what he could find in places frequented by sallors, get them drunk, carry them aboard and sail before they

"Mr. Hale," he said to the first mate, "get 'em up.'

Mr. Hale commenced the rousing of a dozen or more men who were lying on deck by kicking them, each kick accompanied by an oath. When roused they would open their eyes, at first stupidly, but, seeing themselves at sea, would exhibit great surprise. After much effort they were all aroused and lined up on the deck for inspection.

"You're a fine looking lot of lubbers to ship for able seamen," growled the mate. "And you fellers over on the end o' the line, I reckon the only ship you ever sailed in was a prairie

"I know that you drugged me and my men when we were celebratin' and brought us off on to this ship against our will."

The second mate was below with half a dozen men, the only regular crew on the Sarah Rose, and depended on by the officers to enforce orders. They were a lot of desperadoes, but were well treated and well paid. Two of the "end of the line" men were at the forecastle gangway. As the mate, who on hearing the shots had rushed for'ard, ran up the gangway he found for ard, ran up the gangway he found himself pinned below by a cover that it was ascertained that shortly before had been put over the opening. Under the old system, says Paymaster George P. Dyer, U. S. N., in the Proceedings of the United States Naval Institute," the gear was not really clean. A man of the lower ratings, ilided without attention.—New York too often selected on account of his inability to do anything else, looked after these duties. His menger allowance of water served out from the galley was hardly more than lukewarm after carrying it to his mess and putting a few dishes through it. He had then to dry his gear with a towel which, being used for all sorts of odd jobs, cleaning inbles and what not, the arms could not make him keep clean.

In February, 1904, a dishwashing machine was installed on the Missouri and human bands do not now come in contact with the dishes during the process of washing. The solled ware in wide of washing. TO READERS OF THE

GENERAL LADIES' HOME JOURNAL:

Did you read the article published by The Ladies' Home Journal in May 1904, attacking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription? Have you seen the statement more recently made by Mr. Bok, the Editor of No Fusion In Northfield This that magazine that his company "has not paid a single penny to Dr. R. V. Pierce's concern * * * in settlement of any suit"? We wish you to know the truth. The facts are these:

Four days after the article in May 1904, appeared, Dr. Pierce's company sued The Ladies' Home Journal publishers for libel. The trial was had in April last. Dr. Pierce proved that the attack made by The Ladies' Home Journal was false. He proved that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription does not, and never did contain either alcohol or any of the injurious drugs which The Ladies' Home Journal falsely stated it did contain. This was so conclusively shown that the attorneys for Orange Names A. L. Noyes for Repre- Be The Ladies' Home Journal were forced to admit it. The jury rendered a verdict against The Ladies' Home Journal in favor of Dr. Pierce's company for $16,000.00. This was a complete vindication of Doctor Pierce and his "Favorite Prescription." It judicially established that the libel was wholly false, and without any justification.

Dr. Pierce, however, believed that his company is justly entitled to a verdict for a much larger sum. Through his attorneys he has, therefore, applied to the court for a new trial of the case. For this reason, and for this reason alone, has The Ladies' Home Journal not yet paid "a single penny to Dr. R. V. Pierce's concern." Dr. Pierce has simply chosen not to collect the judgment until the motion for a new trial has been decided.

In the light of these facts does not this boastful statement that it "has not paid a single penny to Dr. R. V. Pierce's concern" look like a cheap and common bluff, a half truth intended to mislead you?

but breaking the windows of all the neighboring houses. Gendarmes sur-rounded and searched the house from which the bombs were thrown, but the During the trial of the libel suit against the above mentioned publishers, Dr. Lee H. Smith, Vice-President of the World's Dispensary Medical Association, stated under oath that the ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription were wholly extracted from the following native roots; Golden Seal, Blue Cohosh, Laly's Slipper Black Carosh and Unicomby means of pure glyterine of proper shought. He was asked how he knew, as a physician and experienced medical man, hat the "Favorite Prescription" was a pure for the diseased peculiar to woman, such as "female weakness," we know pelvic catarrhal drains, presponse and he stated that he knew such was the fact because of his professional experience and the many thousands of women whose ills, to his personal experience and the many thousands of women whose ills, to his personal ments. This experience of Dr. Smith was corroborated by the standard Medical Authorities, of the several schools of practice, endorsing the various ingredients in the strongest terms. Dr. Smith being asked to name some of these authorities as to the curative value of the above roots read from the standard works, such as the United States Dispensatory; The American Dispensatory; Organic Medicals, by Grover Coc. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is not advertised as a "Cure All" but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a superior and most positive remedy for one class of diseases only—those easily recognized weaknesses, derangements, irregularities and painful disorders peculiar to women. It is a powerful, yet gently acting, invigorating, tonic and strengthening nervine. For weak, worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down,—whether it be from too frequent bearing of children or from much worry, eare, or over exertion of any kind, All these recognized and standard authorities praise, in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient which enters into the "Favorite Prescription" will be found most efficient in building up the strength, regulating all the womanly functions, lanishing pain and bringing about a regular and healthy, vigorous condition of the whole female system.

They Now Seem to Prefer Life in the Largest Towns.

The investigators who think there is less longevity among the residents of a metropolitan city than there is among the inhabitants of a town, according to the ratio of population, will be very much interested in the declaration by an eminent Frenchman that in Paris, at least, life is prolonged more surely than in any other city in the world. This statement in made in the Paris Figure by M. Rousse, the oldest member of the institute of France, who will be 90 years old next May, and he says that statistics warrant his assertion. It appears that there are 10,500 octogenarians in Paris, or enough to form a good-sized New England town. This gives 389 octogenarians to every 100,-000 inhabitants, according to the population of 2,700,000 in 1901. It is also stated that Paris has 620 nonagenarians, 99 of whom are in their 100th addition to these old folks there are six individuals who have passed their 102d year and have no desire to die for some time to come Statistics of this kind may astonish rural residents more than they do the wellers in cities. Many who have read about the gay city of Paris may be incredulous that there are so many individuals of ad-vanced years there. Nevertheless, it is not astonishing to one who has studied life in a metropolis. In the populous cities, of course, there is a large infant mortality, but among the adults of Brattlebore Republicans Choose Town both sexes probably not any more die in cities than in towns, taking into consideration the difference in population.

Long life is attained more generally by. the cheerful worker. In the words of a certain hard working philosopher: "A fair measure of work is good for the mind as well as body. Man is an in-telligence sustained and preserved by bodily organs, and their active exercise s necessary to the enjoyment of health, it is not work, but overwork, that is surtful; and it is not hard work that is injurious so much as monotonous work, fagging work, hopeless work. All hopeful work is healthful; and to be usefully and hopefully employed is one of the great secrets of happiness. Brain work, in moderation, is no more wearing than any other kind of work. The wear and tear of rust is even faster than the wear and tear of work.'

The city bred, as a rule, do not succumb to the temptations of the city as easily as do those who make up the floating population, who drift in and out of it, often caring little what becomes of them.
